4.0 in its Dna. Always

Tailor-made information solutions

Twenty years of experience in developing integrated information systems for enterprises of all sizes: from small to medium/large. This is the visiting card of Isi-Soluzioni Innovative for industry; headed by three partners with a long professional background behind them: Casimiro Bosoni, Stefano Guglielmetti and Roberto Rimondi.

“All three of us have a solid experience in the world of automation and from individual workstations, over the years, we have passed on to automating whole enterprises. Today they talk about industry 4.0, for us this was not really a revolution but an evolution in the process undertaken by the factory towards digitalization. 4.0 has always been a part of our identity”, explain the founders.

Isi is a software house, producing a series of software products in support of production processes, with solutions for monitoring the systems in real time, quality and manpower control, factory-related logistics and so on. Apart from its core business, the Podenzano based enterprise also provides instruments to improve contact between the company and customer networks, with Crm and special software. “We do not just simply offer applicative software, but true and proper organizational programmes. Consultancy is the feather to our bow in helping enterprises to be really smart by providing them with excellent tailor-made solutions”. Isi often offers itself as a partner to companies going through the delicate period of transforming their business from artisan to industrial. “We invest 20% of turnover in product innovation, but the latter is often born from collaboration with customers themselves and from satisfying their requirements”, point out the owners.

Lastly, another highly distinctive feature of Isi is the meticulous care it takes for its products to be exploited by all. “We were pioneers in introducing a user-friendly type of technology into a business, suited for both management and workers. The entire corporate team, from manager to worker in the workshop, must be made fully aware of the work they do: our focus has always been directed on the person, to whom we provide the tools needed for working to the best”. Continually growing by an average 10%, Isi looks to the future networking with similar sized Sme, to offer ever more complete and efficient services.
